Training Course on Mineral Exploration & Practical Mineral Resource Estimation

This is a course for those who want/have to be specialists in applied resource estimation. It is built upon real case studies and offers practical tips to support those who have to get the job completed. There is a strong importance on hands-on assignments. It provides attendees with some key fundamentals underpinning the estimation process, linking the importance of good geology and good quality sampling data directly to the overall quality of the resource model.
